Recent policy developments

- There are efforts for greater co-ordination and integration of policies for regional development at the federal level, through White House-led councils and task forces (e.g. White House Rural Council, Partnership for Sustainable Communities, etc.).
- This more integrated policy approach has been supported by budget guideline requests to several departments to clarify the “place-based” dimension of their work.
- Regional economic development approaches in several ministries and agencies have increasingly emphasised regional innovation clusters generally, as well as in specific sectors, such as energy and manufacturing.
- Disaster recovery has been a particular focus of several federal departments focused on serving distressed areas.
- Under the White House’s Neighbourhood Revitalisation Initiative, promise zones are tools to attract private investment, create jobs and improve affordable housing.
